

3 KU professors named Higuchi award winners

One KSU professor also recognized

By Erwin Seba

eseba@ljworld.com

Four state university professors were named the Higuchi/Endowment Research Achievement award winners Wednesday night at the Adams Alumni Center.

Three of the professors are from Kansas University and one is from Kansas State University.

The winners:

- Marilyn J. Stokstad, Judith Harris Murphy distinguished professor of art history at KU. She received the Balfour Jeffrey Award for research achievement in humanities and social sciences.

Stokstad

- Patrick Richard, distinguished professor of physics at Kansas State University. He received the Olin Petefish Award for research achievement in the basic sciences.

- Glen K. Andrews, professor of biochemistry and molecular biology at the KU Medical Center. He received the Dolph Simons Award for research achievement in the biomedical sciences.

Montgomery

Richard

- Rhonda J. Montgomery, professor of sociology and director of the Gerontology Center at KU. She received the Irvin Youngberg Award for research achievement in the applied sciences.

The professors each received $10,000 to further their research.

The awards were established in 1981 by the late Takeru Higuchi, KU distinguished professor of chemistry and pharmacy and chair of the department of pharmaceutical chemistry, along with his wife, Aya.

- Staff writer Erwin Seba can be reached at 832-7145.